

EXPRESS - final step : the creative process is ancient & unchanging

+ flying notes

"Wait everything ready before started is like wait all the traffic lights go green at the same time"

→ Not all the part of the given project are equally important you might delete the whole part of project, and it's necessary

→ save it for later use another project → I can conflict out without any wasted effort lose the result of thinking share it before it even publish - ready (to get feed back)